WORK SESSION/DISCUSSION: Corner building wall signs

As previously discussed, the commission ruled that buildings located on a street corner will be allowed two wall signs – one on each wall face so long as the two signs total square footage does not exceed the square footage that they would have been allowed for a single sign.

In the case of the B&T Insurance building and the request to replace two wall signs; the allowable square footage for a single sign would be fifty square feet and if two wall signs are replaced they will have a square footage no greater than twenty-five feet each.
